ENTERTAINED INFORMALLY

Mrs. Fred Sutter entertained a few friends at the Copper Queen Hotel last Wednesday afternoon in courtesy to Mrs. Griggs. The afternoon was spent informally.

MRS. BLAIR ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. Blair entertained a few friends last Wednesday evening at their home on Higgins Hill. Dancing and cards were the features of the evening and those present had a very pleasant evening.

FROM DOUGLAS

Mr. E. M. Dodds arrived in Bisbee yesterday for a short stay. He came on business but as he has friends in the city he will have a short visit with them before returning to his home in Douglas.

TO ASSIST AT OPENING

Miss Mabel Kelly and Miss Edith Stiles both of Douglas, spent last week visiting with Miss Mamie Howe at her home in Tombstone Canyon. The young ladies came especially to assist at the formal opening of the Howe Jewelry company and remained to enjoy meeting the young people of Bisbee.

MRS. GRIGGS RETURNS

Mrs. Griggs of Los Angeles, who has been with her sister Mrs. P. M. Bichawley of Quarry Canyon, returned home last Thursday. She was the guest of honor at a number of parties during her stay, many of which were informal affairs with old time friends. She was very popular and her friends very much regretted the brevity of her visit.

FOR CHRISTMAS

Next Saturday afternoon the ladies of the Baptist church will hold a fancy work and food sale in the building on Main street, opposite the Fair Store. There will be all sorts of fancy work beautifully done and suitable for the holiday season. There will be pies, cakes, bread, etc. to sell. During the afternoon the ladies are planning to serve light refreshments for a very nominal sum. All the ladies of the district are invited to come and look things over. You're sure to be pleased.

BISBEE WOMAN'S CLUB

The Bisbee Woman's Club held its regular meeting Friday at the club house in Quality hill. The meeting had been postponed from the week before on account of Thanksgiving. The program for the afternoon consisted of a highly interesting and very instructive lecture on "The Hawaiian Islands" by Miss Meyer. Miss Meyer spent several years in these islands and her talk was based on actual experience. The hostesses for the day were Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Pearce.

ALL READY

The ladies of St. John's Guild met in all day session with Mrs. Rhodes at her home in Quarry Canyon last Thursday. All the work was completed and final arrangements were made for their sale which will be held Tuesday December ninth in the building on Main street opposite the Fair store. Things will be found to suit all tastes and the ladies are sure if you'll only come you'll find just the things you are looking for. There will be all sorts of fancy work, candies, toys and aprons, besides a food sale where you will be able to obtain cakes, jellies, pies, bread, etc. Don't fail to be there, we are sure to have the very thing you want.

ROUND DOZEN CLUB

The Round Dozen club met last Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Chas. A. Bailey at her home in Tombstone Canyon. The house was prettily decorated in pink and white carnations and these colors were also present

MORGANATIC WIFE OF HEIR TO THRONE

Duchess of Hohenberg.

This is a new picture of the Duchess of Hohenberg, wife of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne. She was the Countess Sophie Chotek, a lady of aristocratic but not royal birth, and a lady-in-waiting in the household of the Archduchess Isabella at the time of her marriage in 1900.

FOR BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Walter Hubbard entertained nine little guests at dinner last Monday evening at her home in Tombstone Canyon. The occasion was the fourth birthday of her son George Jr. The table looked very pretty in its decorations of carnations and ferns, but the juniors were much more taken with the birthday cake with lighted candles at the side. At the close of the meal Master George took charge of this and presided at the cutting of it with much approved ability. After dinner the little fellows enjoyed a few games before taking their departure.

DINNER AND THEATRE

Mrs. Mamie Howe entertained a few friends at dinner in honor of a day evening at her home in Tombstone Canyon. Covers were laid for eight and after the meal the guests indulged in some informal music. The eight o'clock car brought the party down town where they were entertained at the Orpheum by the Troubadours. The evening was most pleasant and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Fads And Fashions

(Florence Fairbanks.)

NEW YORK Dec. 6.—The new "line" or silhouette is still the rule making and heaven only knows what it is going to be. Judging from some of the extreme "advances" models displayed by noted fashion designers in Paris and elsewhere the coming style promises to be a sort of cross between Oriental trousers and a ballet skirt.

However, a great many things may happen before the new style crystallizes into definite form. Some of the best Parisian dressmakers are introducing a curious combination of panners and tunics, the panners being rather flat and the tunics distinctly Persian in outline.

This style was explicated with considerable success in a dinner gown of orange colored charmeuse which was shown by one of the exclusive designers recently. On the draped fronts of this skirt there were some fine Japanese embroideries, and the short, rather flat, panners were carried out in dull blue chiffon of the exact shade of the most prominent design on the skirt. Then there was a Persian tunic of diamante tulle, fringed with crystal and folded corsage of oyster white tulle, mounted over flesh pink chiffon. There were diamond shoulder straps and a broad sash of black crepe de chine embroidered in cut jet and finished off with jet fringes. At the waist, directly in front, there was one of the new conventional flowers which are made of velvet or plush. The flower was in velvet of the deepest shade of blue, and for a heart it had a huge diamond button.

One of the newest and most successful materials for afternoon wear is "drap re neige." This lovely cloth is, as its name suggests, pure white. In texture it resembles duvetyne, but it is even softer and more simple than this famous material. Drap re neige is being largely used by one of the most exclusive tailors in Paris. He is making it up into ideal walking and skating suits for girls, and he is trimming it with bands of white fox and also Siberian fox. The latter combination is wonderfully effective, for this fox is lemon yellow in color and the linings of coats and wraps are made to match. There is no more satisfying combination of color than lemon yellow and ivory or oyster white. With a clever touch of some deep vivid color in the hat a perfect ensemble is obtained.

Another new material is velvet chiffon. This stuff is heavier than muselines de velours and very much more durable. It is being made in all the rich shades of claret and red, which are now so fashionable, and in the purple known as "violet de Monseigneur" it is of rare beauty.

Taffeta combined with velvet is a well liked combination for bride gowns. The taffeta usually appears in the flounces or tunic of the skirt, and again as collar and trimming on the bodice. Promet, one of the most noted Paris designers, delights in black taffeta for the bustle-like drape on his velvet costumes, but if the gown is to be worn for bridge, where the wearer must necessarily be seated for some time, these elaborate back drapings are not practical.

Second in demand to velvet at the present time is duvetyne, the all-ink fabric which has proved more popular than the silk wool combinations. By way of variety two new duvetyne have been introduced by the creator of the original fabric, a striped effect resembling corduroy and a broad-corded design. The plain duvetyne combined with either of these makes an ideal material for the three-piece street costume, yet it is not too warm for an interior frock, especially when it is combined with chiffon or some other thin material.

In fact, many of the velvet dresses, as well as the duvetyne gowns, display the popular transparent bolero waist. A stunning frock of tulle and oiled duvetyne had a bolero on the self tone embroidered in gold thread and an apron effect on the skirt of the duvetyne more richly embroidered in the gold thread. The contrasting color was introduced in the sash, a broad affair in which green and blue and purple and yellow were marvelously blended. Effective as this splash of color was, it was the caution bodice that made the frock comfortable.

The demand for comfortable bodices for interior wear is also answered by the sleeveless bolero waist. The bolero may match a skirt of velvet, or even a woolen fabric, but the sleeves of chiffon, or a thin silk, make the gown wearable and comfortable in a steam-heated apartment.

The increasing interest displayed in the three-piece costume and in the jacket dresses has brought about a corresponding revival of interest in the blouse. For a blouse displaying a feature like the bolero makes the combination of skirt and short-waist look remarkably like one of the popular jacket dresses, and the shops are beginning to sell blouses of heavy materials like velvet, fur, and ermine. Heretofore there has been practically no sale, except in the few specialty shops, for a blouse that was not of the lingerie order, or of crepe de chine or tulle. This winter women have discovered that a very present-

Rose Maid Coming to Orpheum

Center, GRACE KINNICOTT, Charming Prima Donna, The Rose Maid Co., HOWARD W. MARCH, plays The Duke and MISS EVELYN HAMILTON

"The Rose Maid" one of the most pretentious of the recent musical successes in New York, with its coach load of chorus girls, comedians and gingers is scheduled for an engagement at the Orpheum and it will be presented here with all its original wealth of scenery, costumes and properties on Wednesday night.

This tuneful operetta has been produced upon a much larger scale than its sister opera, "The Spring Maid." It is even said to border on the spectacular at times.

A Rosbud Garden of Girls" was the pretty phrase invented by New York critics to describe the fashionably dressed chorus that appears in the two acts of the big musical success. The New York theatrical world was ransacked by the progressive management in order to secure the rare combination of beauty and talent necessary for the ensemble forces of this charming opera.

side three-piece costume can be evolved by matching the skirt with a velvet blouse.

The basque blouse has a serious rival in the bolero waist, which is the favored mode of the hour. It makes little difference how the bolero lines are produced so long as the effect is there. Sometimes the embroidery on a lace waist will be carried out to simulate a bolero; again, a veiling of chiffon or net may be arranged to give the desired effect, but more often the necessary lines are procured by insertion of lace or braid motifs or galloon.

One sees as many short sleeves as very long ones at the moment. The three quarter length is a good average. The long bishop sleeves of chiffon in a blouse of black velvet, worn recently for a luncheon at one of the large hotels, displayed very clearly the charm of this style of sleeve. Other sleeves fit the arm more closely and extend well over the hand; sometimes they are held in at the wrist by a band of black velvet ribbon drawn through a slide of jewels. The particular bright color note this winter is sulphur, and it is shown on many of the newest blouses. On a

This attractive frock is made of banana-yellow charmeuse. The bodice is in surprise effect and has a fichu of white chiffon trimmed with ruffles of same. A soft bow of the material finishes the draped circle at the left side of the front. The sleeves are cut in one with the waist and edged by shaped folds of chiffon. The skirt tunic is scalloped, the scallops being bound with the material. The lower portion of the skirt is slightly draped along the front seam, and buttons are set down the front of the skirt from the waist to the opening at the foot.

STRIKING FROCK OF SILK CREPE

This striking frock is made of flowered silk crepe. The bodice is of the plain surplice type and finished by ruchings of the material around the neck and sleeves. The skirt, which forms a sash, is of plain silk draped about the figure and knotted at the back. The underskirt has a seam running down the left side of the front, and this is finished by a rever of plain silk. The left side of the skirt is slightly draped, the fullness being caught in short tucks beneath the lapped seam.
